BEATING HEART DISEASE

SIX FACTORS INVOLVED IN HEART DISEASE ARE:

- + Calcium build-up in arteries
- + Inflammation
- + Elevated cholesterol levels high blood pressure
- + Eating too much sugar
- + Being inactive or overweight

Love your heart! According to scientific studies, here are healthy lifestyle choices that may help beat the factors involved in heart disease:

+ DRACULA HATES IT, BUT WE LOVE IT!

Studies show aged-garlic supplements may reduce calcium build-up in arteries. Garlic is "used in herbal medicine to help maintain cardiovascular health in adults," according to Health Canada.

+ CUT YOUR CHOLESTEROL

Cholesterol builds up in arteries creating plaques. Plaques block blood flow to the heart. Dig into more plant-based foods, which are naturally high in cholesterol-trapping fibre.

+ REPLACE YOUR SWEETS

Sugary treats promote obesity and heart disease. We consume 22% more calories today than in 1970, attributed primarily to a greater sugar intake. Try alternative natural sweeteners such as stevia, agave or xylitol.

+ PROBIOTICS CAN REGULATE INFLAMMATION.

In Nutrition Review, when researchers analyzed 26 clinical studies they concluded probiotics reduce many markers of inflammation. Some probiotic species also lower cholesterol levels.

+ USE YOUR KNIFE ON A PLANT INSTEAD.

Diets rich in plant-based proteins were linked to lower blood pressure, says the Journal of the American Medical Association.

+ BUST-A-MOVE, DO A DOWNWARD DOG OR TREK DOWN A PATH.

Being active promotes heart health and promotes weight management.

Researchers around the world have discovered there are many factors that cause heart disease. However, we now know that we can beat each one of these factors of heart disease by choosing to eat, drink and bust-a-move. Go on and love your heart!
